Mr Crompton’s Story

Mr Crompton is 67 years old and lives with advanced Dementia. He was receiving support in the form of four calls per day to help with things like personal care, meal preparation and mobility issues.

It was clear that this support wasn’t working and Mr Crompton’s family contacted his community care worker, Mohammed.

Mohammed took the time to discuss the current support package with Mr Crompton and his family and found that because carers were rota based and not consistent, this caused Mr Crompton a lot of stress and agitation. This was mainly due to the high volume of strangers being unfamiliar with Mr Crompton’s individual needs.

As Mr Crompton wished to remain living independently in his own home for as long as possible, Mohammed suggested they look at using a Personal Budget to employ personal assistants to support Mr Crompton on a more personal level.

Mohammed and Mr Crompton’s family worked with a company called Rosekel who supported them to recruit a small team of experienced personal assistants. This provided a much more flexible and consistent support package for Mr Crompton.

Mohammed also secured some funding from Health and Mr Crompton is now supported by his personal assistants as well as community psychiatric nurse, district nurse and an occupational therapist.

Mr Crompton and his family are now much happier thanks to the caring support from their community care worker, Mohammed.
